County supes vote themselves a $10,000 pay raise

■ Pay raise will bring local supervisors to within ten percent of the average salaries in counties of comparable size, according to county staff's survey

By Steve Marschke

The Yolo County Board of Supervisors voted yesterday to increase their yearly salaries by about $10,000, bringing their new annual pay to $27,913 not including benefits.

The pay raise follows a survey of the pay rates of supervisors in ten California counties, performed by Yolo County staff at the request of the Yolo supervisors. The counties surveyed were chosen because of their similarity in population and in their rural/agricultural focus to Yolo County, said Tom Stallard, chairman of Yolo's board of supervisors.

"The high pay was around $49,000 in Kings County, and the low was around what we were making," Stallard said. "The average was around $33,000. Our goal was to bring salaries here to within ten percent of the average."

The five supervisors serving on Yolo's board are elected from each of five districts. Most of West Sacramento is served by Supervisor Michael McGowan, a former city council member and mayor of West Sacramento. Stallard, a Woodland resident, represents a district spanning Woodland and Bryte (a northwestern West Sacramento neighborhood).

Because former supervisor Helen Thomson of Davis has stepped down from her supervisorial seat to assume the post of 8th District California Assembly member, only four supervisors were present during the past several weeks to vote on the issues leading up to the local pay raise.

McGowan, Betsy Marchand and Frank Sieferman (whose term ends at the end of the year) all voted "yes." Stallard abstained.

"The salary had nothing to do with my reason for running for supervisor or for remaining. The issue wasn't relevant for me," he commented, adding that this was the only vote that he, a first term member, has abstained from.

Stallard said that he is fortunate enough to be financially independent, and that while he did not wish to vote "no" on the raise, he would have "felt hypocritical" voting in favor of it.

But he did comment that the old pay rate of $17,848 per year was outdated.

"Essentially, Yolo County has been paid the lowest of any county we're aware of. The old salary level dates from when this was a half-time job. It's no longer a half-time job and hasn't been in a long time. It's now about a 40 to 60 hour per week job."

Total fiscal impact of the pay raise will be about $60,000 per year for the county, once additional benefits are weighed in, but Stallard said the higher pay is deserved "because of the nature of the job we do."

"We operate a $175 million budget and employ about 1,300 people in 13 departments," Stallard stated.

He added that the supervisors' goal is to bring all county employees to within ten percent of the average pay rates of their counterparts in comparable counties (a change which will cost about $300,000), but that the supervisors, who were receiving about two-thirds below that comparable rate before the new raise, were among the worst compensated employees of Yolo County.

Although their day-to-day duties vary, including committee assignments and meetings with constituents, the board of supervisors meets in Woodland

Suspected arsonist dies in Glide Ave. blaze

By Steve Marschke

Details are still sparse on the bizarre fire Sunday night which left one man dead at a Glide Ave. house.

Sacramento man Michael Edward Hibbs, 48, was found dead of smoke inhalation when fire department personnel responded the flames, which caused "moderate" damage to the vacant home at 552 Glide Court.

Hibbs was believed by police to have been involved in setting the fire when he was overcome.

Property owner Feroz D. Khan does not live in West Sacramento and the home was being remodeled, said Detective Ed Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Department.

A suspected accomplice, Jose Reynaldo Romero, 46, was arrested following the fire. Romero was described by police as an acquaintance of Hibbs.

"We're not sure if he was actually on the site," said Hensley. "It's more of a conspiracy thing."

Hensley declined to elaborate on possible motives for the arson fire, saying that the investigation was continuing and there could be more arrests.

Sore feet, but a good cause

Tricia Dugan of Sacramento with fellow runners Donna Levin and Jennifer Gereghty of West Sacramento. The trio were part of a marathon team which completed Sunday's 26.2 mile course and earned $135,000 for the fight against leukemia.

Two local women who began training with the Leukemia Society's Sacramento "Team in Training" in July completed the California International Marathon on Sunday and helped their team raise over $135,000 -- a new record for the chapter.

Donna Levin and Jennifer Gereghty put their dedication to the test to be part of this effort, which benefited the war against leukemia. The team turns beginning runners into marathoners by training every Wednesday and Saturday as a team, under the direction of coaches.

They joined almost 3,000 other runners in the 26.2 mile race from Folsom to the State Capitol.

All of the Sacramento team's runners met their own personal performace goals.

Top runners in the race overall finish the course in under three hours.

Anyone interested in joining next year's team may contact the Leukemia Society, 369-7581.

Pepper spray-toting assailants rob guards, but one suspect arrested

By Steve Marschke

Three masked men robbed two guards at the Fleming Foods warehouse guard shack the evening of Dec. 1, spraying pepper spray and possibly assaulting them with a large flashlight. But one suspect's mask came off during the scuffle, and the guards identified him as a former employee.

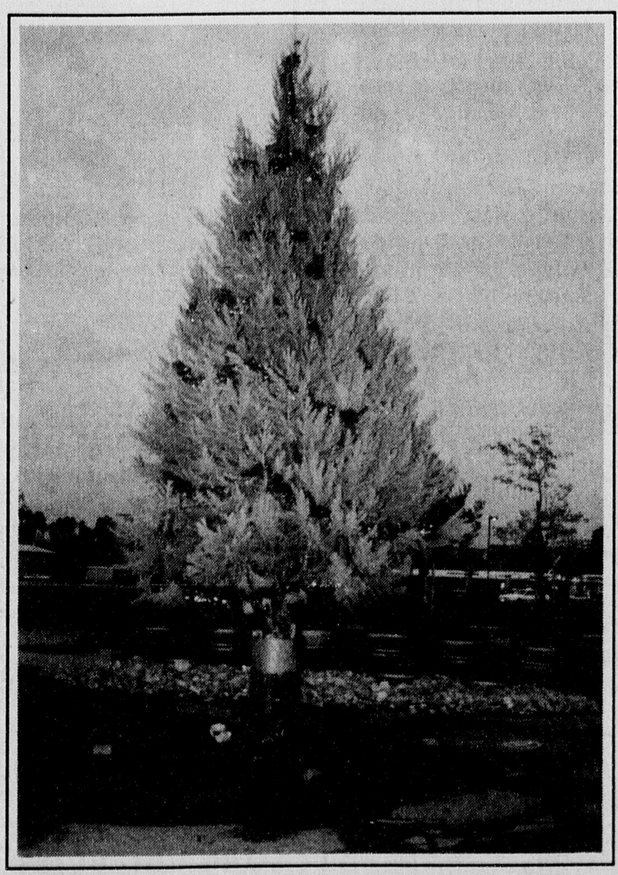
David Rainwater, 24 years old and a Sacramento resident, turned himself in to police Monday morning in response to that identification.

The distribution center is located at 3771 Channel Dr. in the port area of West Sacramento.

"There's a small shack where trucks have to check in and out," said Detective Ed Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Department. "The money was taken from one of the guards personally."

Besides robbing the guard, the suspects also took a company radio.

"They may have had plans for the radio, they may have been after cash, it's hard to say," said Hensley. "The guards can't tell us too much because they were pepper sprayed and couldn't see a lot."



Donated holiday tree lights up intersection

The Golden State Middle School Band played, and Santa joined Chamber of Commerce president John Davis, city council member Christopher Cabaldon and vice mayor Wes Beers in throwing the switch on the traditional public Christmas tree at the corner of West Capitol Ave. and Jefferson Blvd. on Friday evening at dusk.

The tree was donated by resident Jeff Henry and mounted on a stand built by Lou Arges.

Overdose —

After a friend summoned medical assistance, a man was found dead of a heroin overdose at a Lighthouse Drive home on Sunday evening.

William Hamilton, 54, was visiting a friend at that location before he died around 6:30 p.m. Sunday evening, said the West Sacramento Police Department.

No arrests have been made in connection with the death.

Holiday deadlines

Due to early printing deadlines for the News-Ledger's Dec. 25 (Christmas) and Jan. 1 (New Year) issues, all classified ads and other submissions for those two issues must be received by the previous Friday. Other policies outlined on page 2 still apply.

Part of local Christmastime: Santa on a fire truck

The other day I was sitting at work trying to write stuff that would, in effect, change the fate of the free world. Then suddenly. . .without warning. . .I got bored. So I did what most people do in this situation. As my eyes wandered from my computer screen down to the keyboard, over to the windowpane and out the window past suburban tracts to the misty foothills off in the distant East, I shivered. Within moments, through the non-technological wonders of the human body, I sank into a non-drug induced hypnotic trance of mystical proportions.

I began to daydream.

Free associating synaptic sparks fired randomly between my temples (kind of like when I start up our 13-year-old van in the morning).

"Cold...winter...grey skies...leaves falling off trees...trees...Christmas trees...gifts...little kiddos...happy little kiddos...fussy little kiddos who've eaten too much Christmas fudge and are bouncing on my back and pulling my hair as I try to digest a huge holiday dinner...kiddos sleeping...Santa...firetruck...Santa and the firetruck driving around during the Christmas season!" I unconsciously smiled as I remembered last year when the three-wheeler scooter squiggled around our street, sounding its siren and telling all adults to gather their youngsters for a sneak at Santa. Shortly thereafter, the giant hook and ladder crept through our nighttime neighborhood, blaring, good old-fashioned Christmas music, with Santa in the back going "Ho Ho Ho Ho Ho" until he was Ho-Ho-hoarse. We quickly bundled up our little munchkins and whisked them outside to watch the bright, white spectacle roll down our street. Our kids got wide-eyed as the light and sound show came closer and closer. Soon firemen passing out candy canes ran to groups of people gathered on their front sidewalks to wave and talk to Santa.

"How many in your family?" one asked as we met. Quickly, I worked on the math.

"Well," I thought to myself, "there's Queen Smoot, Jr. Smoot, princess Smoot (but she's really too young to have a candy cane, so I shouldn't count her), Toby dog Smoot (but does one count a dog in this kind of census? Does this count include 'seconds?)" Mr. fireman politely stood there while my mouth silently calculated the averages, cosines and logarithms to this question.

"Uh, three...no...four (I would eat Princess Smoot's I had decided). The polite fireman quickly pulled out first three, then four candy canes for all of us then jogged off to the next family.

Back at the office, I was still smiling, my eyes glazed over from the revery of Christmas past. Then, as if someone had slipped a frozen salmon into my shirt, I shivered, recalling that a few months back that the Fireman's Association amplification equipment and Christmas CD's had been stolen.

And the Grinch stole Christmas in our little river hamlet.

I just couldn't bare to sit idly by and not do a little thing...even a small thing to get this tradition back on line. So I stopped my afternoon daydreaming session and called the Fire Department to see if I could help. I don't remember the name of the fireman I spoke to, but he assured me that they could use some help to replace the equipment and CDs. I was impressed by the commitment and drive he possessed to have a Santa this year come "hell or high water."

There are lots of selfless acts that go unnoticed during the Christmas season, but as I reflect on my kids, and the kids I've seen who witness in wonderment this jolly man on the gigantic white "sleigh," I am moved to drive over to the firehouse tomorrow morning and drop off my meager contribution to get Santa back.

I would urge you to do the same. Do it to show that the Grinch can't ruin Christmas for our community. Do it out of civic duty. But most of all, do it for the kids.

If it's news and it's local, you probably read it in the News-Ledger first.

Lance Cpl. Keller reports to duty in Okinawa, Japan

Marine Lance Cpl. Christy D. Keller, daughter of Richard and Judy Miller of West Sacramento, recently reported for duty with Headquarters and Service Company, III Marine Expeditionary Force, Okinawa, Japan.

Keller's new assignment is an example of how Navy and Marine Corps men and women are assigned to ships, squadrons and shore commands around the world. Whether serving in the Persian Gulf near Iraq or in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia, people like Keller are making a difference as they work to improve their knowledge and skill as part of the most highly technical naval force in history.

Firefighters give Santa a lift around town

From the West Sacramento Firefighters Association

This December starts the 25th annual Santa Run. Twenty-five years ago the firefighters decided to do something for the children in the community at Christmas time. Again, the firefighters will decorate the fire truck with lights and play music when Santa arrives. As they drive through the neighborhoods they will hand out candy canes, as well as collect non-perishable food for the local food basket, which distributes food to the needy.

The West Sacramento Firefighter's Association has enjoyed volunteering their time for this great event, which everyone in the community looks forward to during the holidays. Santa's schedule is listed below:

December 12, south of West Capitol/north of Bus. 80/ Hwy.50; December 13, south of Bus. 80/Hwy. 50/north of the Barge Canal; December 16, north of West Capitol/south of the railroad tracks; December 17, east of Fourness (Bryte area); December 18, east of Kegle (Broderick area); December 19, Southport area (Linden west of Jefferson); December 20, west of Kegle to Arthur, Southport (Arlington Oaks and Linden West).

Santa will leave from the station at 6 p.m. each night.

Santa will also be at Raley's parking lot in West Sacramento on December 14 from 6 to 9 p.m. There will be hot chocolate and coffee.

The public can have their picture taken with Santa (cash donations will be accepted). All donations raised will go towards replacing the stolen stereo equipment from the Firefighter's Association Hall and local charities.

Wastewater Treatment Alternatives Explored

With the anticipated growth in Southport following the completion of the Palamidessi Bridge there will be new demands on all City services including wastewater treatment. In September a public decision making process was started to assist the City in determining how future wastewater treatment needs will be handled. Over one hundred people attended one of two public meetings held to identify issues that must be addressed as part of the process. Additional public comments were also received during the month of October generated by inserts in the City utility billing and discussions with local businesses. Answers to over 100 questions raised at the meetings were prepared and given out to interested residents and businesses.

Based on this input a list of alternatives was developed. The alternatives include:

- Operating the existing South River Road treatment plant to serve the north half of the City as capacity allows and build a new treatment plant in Southport at one of the four following locations:
  1. Within Southport Industrial Park,
  2. Near the intersection of Jefferson Boulevard and the Deep Water Channel,
  3. In the vicinity of Gregory Avenue,
  4. Within the Riviera Lakes of Yolo County just south of the City limits.
- Upgrade and rebuild the existing West Sacramento plant on the existing South River Road site, by adding upgrades as the need arises.
- Operate the existing plant as pretreatment for north half of the City and connect our outfall to the the Sacramento Regional treatment plant for growth in Southport.
- Connect the existing City outfall to the Regional plant. Close existing plant immediately except as a pump station.
- Build a separate pipeline for Southport untreated wastewater to the Regional plant, and continue to operate existing South River Road plant until no longer cost effective.

These alternatives were presented at a November 25th public meeting attended by approximately seventy-five people. In addition, specific criteria for measuring the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed alternatives were presented.

City staff and its consultant are now in the process of evaluating the alternatives based on the identified evaluation criteria. A public meeting to discuss the outcome of this process will be scheduled in late January. It is anticipated that the City Council will consider this issue and make a decision on a preferred alternative in February.

Individuals interested in obtaining a complete list of the alternatives, evaluation criteria, and responses to identified issues should contact Steve Rikala of the Community Development Department at (916) 373-5854

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

It's hard to pick NFL winners on a weekly basis, and last week I was half right -- or was that half wrong?

The 49ers got blasted 30-24, by the second year expansion team Carolina, but the Raiders saved me by mugging the Chiefs 26-7 on a rainy Monday night game. The 49ers played like an expansion team after committing 15 penalties and four costly turnovers. The 49ers had seven personal fouls and had their leading tackler Gary Plummer ejected from the game in the second quarter, after he touched the referee. William Floyd was anut case, spitting at players and talking trash throughout the game. This was the guy that I said would be the difference in the game, and he was.

Floyd had a personal foul and a major fumble that cost the Niners a touchdown, and he only gained two yards on two carries, plus he dropped the only pass that came his way.

On the other hand, the Panthers' QB, Kerry Collins, had a career day, throwing for 327 yards and three touchdowns and showing great poise in his first big test as an NFL quarterback.

Both teams are 10-4, but the Panthers own a season sweep of the 49ers and can earn the West Division crown and a first round bye with a second round home game. Carolina, who has not lost at home this season (6-0), closes the regular season with two home games. If they beat Baltimore on Sunday and win their final home game against Pittsburgh, they win the West.

The 49ers clinched a playoff berth Sunday when Washington lost, but the 49ers are now faced with the possibility of a wild card game for the first time since 1985. The Niners close the season with a trip to Pittsburgh on Sunday and a Monday night contest next week against Detroit.

I know I say this every week, but the 49ers, who are favored by two points, will win this game!

49ers 28, Steelers 17.

The Raiders (7-7) played their hearts out on Monday night and remain alive in the hunt for that last playoff spot. If the Raiders want to survive another week, they need to win at Denver this Sunday, and they need the Chiefs to beat the Colts in Kansas City. Just think about it: in order for the Raiders to win the Super Bowl, they can't lose another game. That means they have to win six games in a row! The Raiders are on a roll and will win in Denver!

Oakland 23, Denver 13.

The Kings (7-13) are at home on Thursday against Dallas, then travel to L.A. to play the Clippers before returning to the Arco Arena on Monday to play the Washington Bullets.

Good news for baseball fans in the Bay Area: Ticket prices will go up for 17 major league teams, but not for San Francisco or Oakland fans. The Giants and A's both decided not to raise ticket prices for the 1997 season! Doesn't that make you wonder why?

See ya next week!!

On Tuesday, December 10, R.C. will play at Mesa Verde at 6 p.m. They will play at Casa Roble on Tuesday, December 17; game times are freshman, 4 p.m., sophomores, 5:30 p.m. and varsity, 7 p.m. The Raiders play in the Folsom tournament on December 18, 19 and 20.

News-Ledger Editorial:

A tweak here & a tweak there

West Sacramento's state senator, Maurice Johannessen, has done some good things for this town.

He is an unapologetic, died-in-the-wool conservative who has a reputation for calling it like he sees it, so it's no surprise to see him swing the "L" word ("Liberal") as an insult, as modern American conservatives are prone to do.

But a recent campaign solicitation mailer laid it on a little thick.

Johannessen attacked Prop. 208, a campaign reform initiative which passed in November, as a device "to maintain the liberal status quo." The campaign initiative would allow liberals to continue running campaigns with piles of cash from special interests like labor unions, he said, while he and other conservatives would apparently have to depend only on individual donations from fine, upstanding, lone citizens such as yourself.

He is right that Prop. 208 doesn't take all the big money out of state politics.

But where is the recognition that conservative Republicans, like Johannessen, can enjoy the financial support of their own special interest groups?

True, the California Teachers Association and other big labor groups typically fund Democratic legislators. But which party do you think gets the most benefit from, for example, the Christian Right? The National Rifle Association? The California Manufacturers Association?

Campaign money from special interest groups, with or without Prop. 208, is a bipartisan affair. It is a disservice for a member of any political party to ignore that.

In all fairness, detailed information on the local county supervisors' proposed pay raise was available through a variety of official sources.

Nevertheless, it is enjoyable to note how one Dec. 3 Yolo County memo which served as a staff report addressed the proposed $10,000 pay raise before the raise was adopted yesterday.

The memo referred to the salary boost as an "amendment to compensation," without mentioning the word "raise" or referring to the supervisors' old salary levels or proposed new ones. Under the heading "Fiscal Impact," where one would expect to see a dollar estimate of the cost of the new pay raise, the agenda report merely stated that "Appropriations from the General Fund finance the operations of the Board of Supervisors."

That's nice to know, but doesn't answer the question of fiscal impact (which will be around $60,000 per year, in case you wondered).

Ah, well.

More detailed information was certainly available on request. But it is better for our government to work especially hard to be frank with potentially embarassing topics such as a self-voted pay raise than to try to tip-toe around them -- even in a one page staff summary.

Letters to the Editor

City Christmas Tree

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to all of the people who participated in the lighting of the Christmas Tree.

First and foremost to all the residents of the City of West Sacramento who attended the ceremony as well as those who have called and expressed their appreciation of the tree.

The event would not have occurred without the dedication of the Chamber of Commerce, especially Steve Roberts, who went out of his way to help in the last minute tightening of some loose ends. As was the case last year, Kelly lighting and display did a beautiful job of decorating the tree and is also putting up the decorations along West Capitol Avenue. Jill at PG&E provided the power to run the lights. Last year, Lou Arges built the tree stand that we still use today and I'm sure it will last for many years to come. And we cannot forget that Diane Virdee of Riverside Tree Farm on Linden Road grows the best trees in the valley, which might very well not have made it to the corner without the help of Don and Gary from the regions top Parks and Community Services Department (by the way, it happens to be ours).

The event this year was made even more enjoyable by the performance of the Golden State Middle School Marching Band. Duane Anderson, the music director, helped to make this the best lighting event I've ever attended and I hope to return the favor by working with Duane to help in his fundraising efforts to provide uniforms for these very talented musicians.

And finally, the switch throwers themselves included Santa, Chamber president John Davis, councilmember Christopher Cabaldon, and a very special thank you to the vice-mayor, Wes Beers, for his very kind words during the ceremony.

Again, thank you all for your help and from my family to all of you, all the best wishes there is to offer.

Merry Christmas and a most wonderful new year.

Grant for parks:

B of A gives $2,500 grant

From the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Department

Parks and Community Services was just notified by Bank of America Manager Sue McGowan that the Bank of America Foundation has granted $2,500.00 to the Department for the partial development of the Sacramento Riverfront Park. The grant calls for three police officers, five recreation staff members and 25 children ages 8 to 15 to plant trees as a community tree planting project.

The trees will be planted per the park design and be a portion of the overall Riverfront Park development project.

Business incentives

From Melinda Posner
Community Relations
West Sacramento Redevelopment & Housing Agency

A newly revised state program will allow more West Sacramento businesses to qualify for business incentives, including sales and use tax credits and employee hiring credits.

SB2023, the newly enacted Enterprise and Employment Act (EEZ) signed by Governor Wilson in September, replaces two existing state programs while retaining some of the best features of each. What this means for local businesses is that, as of January 1, 1997, more of them will be eligible for tax credits.

In the past, only businesses that were located in a specific "program area" were eligible to qualify for these business incentives. SB2023 establishes new criteria which identifies all West Sacramento businesses located north of the barge canal as eligible for enterprise zone benefits. As an example, qualified businesses could receive a tax credit of $6,500/employee for one year, or up to $19,000 for one employee over five years.

In addition, qualified business will be able to use employees from a greater pool to qualify for hiring credits. Prior to passage of SB2023 employers were able to qualify for hiring credits only for those employees who lived in "high density unemployment areas." This included one area in West Sacramento and four areas in Sacramento. Employers will now be able to qualify for hiring credits for employees that reside within what will now be called "Targeted Employment Areas." These areas will be officially designated by January 1, 1997, but will likely include most of the City of West Sacramento.

If you are interested in the Enterprise Zone program or would like clarification on how the changes affect your business, please call Economic Development Specialist Barbara Moore, 373-5843.

generally on the first three Tuesday mornings of each month.

Their job is essentially to set policy and direction for county government, hiring and guiding staff in achieving it.

In many ways, California counties act as a local branch of the state government, providing social services mandated by the state and administering courts. Yolo County also operates a jail and provides law enforcement personnel (a sheriff's department) to serve the unincorporated (non-city) parts of the county, among many other duties.

The supervisor's seat vacated by Davis resident Helen Thomson, who was elected to the California Assembly last month, will be filled by an appointment by Governor Wilson.

Police log

Following is a small sampling of the calls reported on the incident logs of the West Sacramento Police Department. Because facts have not been verified through investigation or trial, no names or exact addresses are printed here.

Dec. 4, 7:47 p.m.

An undercover officer on an anti-prostitution detail picked up a 30-year old suspected prostitute along West Capitol Ave., and she got into his car. She directed him to a nearby motel and asked him to touch her to prove he was not a cop.

Further details are relegated to a separate report.

The woman was arrested and cited.

Dec. 6, 7:50 a.m.

An officer stopped a car along West Capitol for having no seat belts in use. The officer asked the male driver to step out of the vehicle, and when the female passenger opened her door to speak to the officer, the officer saw a hypodermic syring in plain sight. The 40-year old woman was arrested. The 44-year old man then said the syringe was his and he was arrested as well.

Dec. 9, 8:17 a.m.

A half bottle of detergent was reported stolen from a laundramat.

Dec. 9, 8:20 a.m.

A mother was reported to have been yelling and cursing at her eight year old daughter all night on Hickory Way.

Dec. 9, 8:23 a.m.

An anonymous caller said a fast food restaurant employee was shooting at cats near the restaurant.

Dec. 9, 10:16 a.m.

At a Harbor Blvd. business, police were asked to help force a panhandler to leave the area, but the panhandler was gone when they arrived.

Dec. 9, 10:47 a.m.

A woman on Rogers St. said someone had tried to break into the family pickup truck the previous night, but her husband scared off the suspect.

Dec. 9, 1:36 p.m.

A man asked that his stepmother be removed from his home. The woman was prevented from being there by a restraining order, but had been allowed by him to visit his children. After she grabbed him by the throat, he said he wanted her removed.

Dec. 9, 1:46 p.m.

A meal delivery worker reported that no one had answered the door at a regular stop on the meal route on Rockrose Road for the past week, although the residents weren't known to have travel plans. Police checked the home and said it appeared normal and the seniors' car was gone.

Dec. 9, 3:24 p.m.

An ongoing vandalism problem was reported for cars parked near a Channel Dr. address.

The value of the damage was unknown.

Local display features ancient technique

From Betty Fairbairn Sokolich
Exhibition Chairperson
East Yolo Friends of the Library

The December 1996 exhibit at the Turner Library is featuring the unusual and intriguing work of Sacramento artist, Bob Tonjes. The work uses a technique that was used hundred of years ago in Egypt and Rome. Examples of painting on glass especially for jewelry, can be found from antiquity in many museums. The technique was revived in the late 19th century and again in recent times as a means to create an artistic expression for present times. Bob Tonjes became intrigued with the effects possible with paint on glass particularly reverse painting. The painting is done by first laying down the forward details then proceeding towards the background, in other words, the reverse to the method of oil or acrylic painting where the details are added as the last brush strokes. At the reception held on November 30 to honor the artist Lou Watson, viewing the paintings remarked that it must be very difficult to correct when you are working backward. Tonjes concurred and said that the artist would be wise to "just start over again."

"Lily Pond" is reminiscent of Monet's "Lily Ponds" with the impressionistic brush strokes. "Mare and Colt" romping around the meadow are having an exhilarating time together. Lush colors and ambiguous shapes in "Abstract Landscape" suggests many things to the person viewing the painting -- where is the landscape? Do I see flowers, trees, streams, or what else?"

The unusual blue in the buildings of Mendocino contrasted by the yellow road leading further into town is visually very attractive in "Weekend in Mendocino."

The exhibit can be seen during regular library hours and the meeting/gallery room is enter through the childrens' section.

The East Yolo Friends of the Library sponsors the shows each month.

Vacation Inn/Margaret McDowell Manor:

Demolition ceremony Friday

Christian Church Homes, Inc. of Oakland was awarded $5.7 million in HUD 202 funds to construct 73 units of senior housing. This grant, combined with the $950,000 HOME grant from the State Department of Housing and Community Development received by the City in 1995 for the construction of 14 units, will provide the majority of funding for the development of Margaret McDowell Manor. The manor is the vision for the site of what was formerly known as Vacation Inn, which is planned for demolition before the end of this year.

The HUD 202 program provides grant funding for senior housing. HUD allocates a specific number of units to be funded on an annual basis. West Sacramento competed with two other applications to win the total 73 units which were earmarked for this funding cycle. The grant received by Christian Church Homes with a subsidy as well, which will reduce the amount of subsidy required by the Redevelopment Agency to keep rents affordable.

Eligible seniors will be 62 years and over, earning less than $16,500 a year (or $18,500 for senior couples). Centrally located on Merkley Avenue between Jefferson Blvd. and 15th Street, senior residents of Margaret McDowell Manor will be within easy walking distance of the grocery store, post office and banks, as well as other retail and service outlets. Construction of the 87 units is expected to begin as early as next year.

Redevelopment Agency staff is planning to kick-off the demolition of the Vacation Inn with a pre-demolition ceremony. City officials will be available to swing the first sledge hammers at the site on Thursday, December 12, at 11:30 a.m. at the Vacation Inn, 1525 Merkley Avenue. The public is invited.

New Books

Sojourner Truth: A Life, A Symbol. Nell Irvin Painter. W.W. Norton & Co. 348 pages.

Blending scholarship and sympathetic understanding, prominent historian Nell Irvin Painter examines the life of ex-slave and fervent abolitionist Sojourner Truth. Professor Painter provides an extensively documented biography of the woman who came to embody freedom and to edify an entire race, yet whose little-known life has been steeped more in apocryphal tales than in truth. Riveting preacher, spellbinding singer, and uncompromising feminist, this complex woman helped to empower black women and the poor. Her courage continues to inspire many today.

Other books now available at the Turner Branch Library include:

The Last Thing He Wanted. Joan Didion. Alfred A. Knopf. 227 pages.

Political journalist Elena McMahon is only covering the 1984 primary campaign for the Washington Post until she begins to notice discrepancies between Senate and F.B.I interviews and public accounts of certain high-profile events. She quickly links November 22, 1963, the Iran-Contra Affair, and Castro's Cuba into a dark web of intrigue.

Danger Zones. Sally Beauman. Fawcett Columbine. 424 pages.

Sex, secrets, and sin are about to collide in Paris as reclusive Maria Cazares, the gifted yet mysterious couturier whose life is engulfed in rumors of broken taboos, is now linked to murder. As the world waits for the unveiling of Cazares' latest collection, scandal ensues.

American Dragons: Twenty-Five Asian American Voices. Lawrence Yep (ed.). Harper Collins Publisher. 236 pages.

Who am I? Where do I fit in? Am I Asian? Am I American? There are questions often asked by Asian-American children who seek a sense of identity. The author includes short stories, poems, and excerpts from plays by many well-known Asian writers that help to define what it means to be an Asian-American.

Starting and Running a Profitable Investment Club. Thomas E. O'Hara and Kenneth S. Janke, Sr. Random House. 277 pages.

The CEO and president of the National Association of Investment Clubs (NAIC) provide expert advise on how to start and run an investment club. Whether you are a novice or seasoned investor, this book provides a "how-to" guide for selecting stocks, conducting meetings, and retaining members.

The Origin of Everyday Moods: Managing Energy, Tension and Stress. Robert E. Thayer, Ph.D. Oxford University Press. 264 pages.

Psychologist Robert Thayer provides an informative discussion of moods and mood management. Once we understand that our moods are directly affected by psychology and physiology and not by mysterious reactions to situations or events, he argues, we can shape our health and well-being.

New Books-on-Tape

A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court. Mark Twain. (3 hours).

Considered "a central document in American intellectual history," this work is a "comedy of anachronisms and incongruities, a romantic fantasy, a utopian vision, and a savage, anarchic social satire."

Big or small, we ship it all.℠
